

ONLY BOILING POINT TEST CAN TELL TRUE VALUE OF GASOLINE

The old gravity test for gasoline really tells nothing of its efficiency because gasolines of the same gravity may differ greatly in boiling points, and boiling points are the only true measure of gasoline. By mixing two gasolines of high gravity, a combination can be obtained which will meet whatever gravity test is desired, but such fuel would not work efficiently in an automobile engine.

When, however, the boiling point test is used, the referee can be sure of maintaining the quality of his product and the motorist can be sure of a uniform gasoline. Every gasoline, for good service, must possess a gradually rising series of boiling points. Low boiling points are absolutely essential for starting but are useless for high power. High boiling points give power, but no motor would start if only the high boiling points were used. The full chain of boiling points must be presented.

Only straight-distilled gasoline has the necessary boiling points. Red Crown is a well-known gasoline which possesses the full and continuous chain necessary for easy starting and full power.

Organized Work to Cease

Instructions received this week from Robert E. Smith, director of the war loan organization in the twelfth federal reserve district, order cessation of organized work in the thrift stamp and W. S. S. campaign in Hawaii. A. H. Tarleton, territorial director, has been instructed to close campaign headquarters, collect and store general office equipment and send forward an invoice of all property on hand.

Retrenchment enforced on the war loan organization throughout the country by the Treasury Department, compels elimination of all further expenditure of funds in the campaigns of thrift education, according to District Director Smith.

Tarleton says this does not mean that sale of thrift stamps and W. S. S. shall stop however, or that work already under way which does not involve financial expenditure shall be given up. He urges that business firms and others who are authorized agents continue to offer thrift stamps to the public and urge their sale.

The active campaign may be checked only temporarily. In his letter to Tarleton, Director Smith intimates that Congress may be requested to appropriate a definite sum of continuance of country-wide thrift education. He says:

"The deeper I get into this War Savings work the more I am impressed with its value to the nation. The high cost of living is simply the cost of living high and the nationwide inclination to spend what was saved during the war is responsible for present conditions, rather than the alleged profiteering of manufacturers, jobbers and retailers.

"Now is the time to increase rather than curtail thrift propaganda and I hope when the Peace Treaty is out of the way Congress will address itself to the wave of extravagance which is sweeping over the country and frankly appropriate funds for an adequate campaign of education along lines of sane living and saving.

"Inasmuch as the Liberty Loan in Hawaii has been closed and there is no Certificate of Indebtedness organization I suppose that we can only consider an inhibition upon state and country expenditures as a complete cessation of the work of the Honolulu office. I think it best that the equipment, if you have any, be stored, as it is possible that the Treasury Department plans may be so changed in the future as to make it possible to reopen that office. Even though this is not done, it is possible that an issue of refunding notes will be offered after the first of the year, which will require a more or less popular drive, in which case of course it would be necessary to have a central headquarters at Honolulu."

Certainly, in Tarleton's opinion, island people are not asked to curtail their purchases of thrift stamps. The government expects Hawaii to take a total of $1,492,900 in these securities in the year 1919. At last report only about thirty percent of that amount had been purchased. Thrift education may continue in the schools along the original lines planned by the department of public instruction, where no expenditure of money is required from the government.

Instructions and heads of departments in the schools are being advised now that the hand grenade savings banks may be obtained from banks and trust companies. These unique souvenirs of the great war are not really in the banks' possession yet however, for the latter are just now receiving notification that the souvenirs are to be had.

The Treasury Department proposes these small savings banks be used as advertising novelties by the concerns which distribute them. It offers to sell the grenades, in their altered form, to banks and trust companies at eight cents apiece, or slightly less than the original cost to the government. In addition, each grenade will come with a neat metal tag attached, bearing the signature of the bank distributing it. The metal tag is included in the price of the grenade.

The plan of distributing provides that the banks shall hand one out to each youngster up to twelve years of age, who buys one $5 W. S. S.; one to each boy or girl between the ages of twelve and eighteen who buys two $5 W. S. S., and one to each man or woman over eighteen years who buys one $100 or one $1000 War Savings Certificate.

The Treasury Department has 15,000,000 of the hand grenade banks ready for distribution. They are real grenades and originally were loaded with TNT for use against the Huns. They were of the very latest and most approved type of grenades, said to be the best produced at the time of the armistice. Now the explosive has been removed and the small steel receptacles converted into banks by the cutting of a coin slit on one side and placement of a removable bottom, through which accumulated savings can be withdrawn. They are about four and a half inches in height, and oval in form.

THEODORE ROBERTS ONE OF THE ABLEST ACTORS IN COUNTRY

Theodore Roberts, who appears in "The Winning Girl," Shirley Mason's new Paramount picture which will be shown at the Tip Top theatre Thursday is undoubtedly one of the screen's most famous character actors. In this picture he has the role of a pompous but improvident old major. He has done many remarkable portrayals in his long career and recently he appeared as Canby in "Arizona." He is also seen as Big Bill in C. B. de Mille's new version of "The Squaw Man."

Theodore Roberts began his theatrical career at an early age and did many splendid things on the legitimate stage. Later he became affiliated with Paramount and Artcraft pictures and he was cast in many important roles. In every case by his artistry and natural ability he has given to the screen many lifelike portraits.

STORY OF THE LOST BATTALION IS MOST ROMANTIC OF WAR

No more romantic story of the war has come than that of the famous Lost Battalion, and of the ringing answer made by the Germans by the American commander when they demanded his surrender. It has been told in story and in many columns of newspaper print. The men of the battalion have been pictured in the dailies and in the weekly news reels of the moving picture theatres, but it has remained for David Wark Griffith to immortalize that story by impressing it in the indelible celluloid of a photodrama.

The new Griffith picture is not a war play. It has in its plot some things that have to do with war and there are some battle scenes shown that are said to be the best yet screened, especially one of a night attack when the parachute flares and a box barrage are seen working simultaneously. The short chapters that deal with the actual fighting, deal almost exclusively with the charge and siege of one of the lost companies that faced the Huns along the Argonne and who made that classic everlasting answer.

"The Girl Who Stayed at Home" is the new production which will be shown at the Tip Top theatre tonight. It was written by S. E. V. Taylor and is played by Griffith players, headed by Robert Harron, who presents a character he has never before attempted, but which is said to show a versatility in this actor that even he himself had never dreamed existed.

Goodyear Tire Representative Visits Kauai

H. E. Hollenbeck, Representative of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company is spending a week on Kauai in the interests of his firm. He arrived recently from the coast where he was connected with the San Francisco branch, and will make his headquarters in Honolulu and will superintend the distribution and service of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company products.

"The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's policy of merchandising is a change from the old time methods of selling goods," says Mr. Hollenbeck. "Heretofore a sale was considered complete when the customer left the store, but modern methods as employed by Goodyear consider no sale complete, until the tire has delivered in service all the miles that were built into it and the purchasers realize full value for their money. They accomplish this by careful choice of dealers who are competent to render real service as outlined by Goodyear."

"It is a pleasant surprise to find that Nawiliwili Garage, Ltd., under the management of Mr. Baggot is rendering a higher degree of service than is ordinarily found, yet considering Mr. Baggot's past experience and reputation in having been directly connected with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company for the past several years, it is to be expected that he will rapidly build a service organization that will compare favorably with any metropolitan district."

John Raposa, manager of the hardware department of Lihue Store, departed for Honolulu Saturday afternoon, where he will undergo an operation on his eye.

If you have anything to sell, or there is something you want, put a little notice in the Garden Island, and you will get results. It does not cost much.

Garden Island Poloists Win; Oahu Quartet is Blanked

Outplaying the Oahu team in every department, the Kauai polo four demonstrated their superiority Wednesday afternoon in the second game of the series for the championship of the Hawaiian Islands, by blanking the locals and winning the game by a score of 13 to 0.

The issue was never in doubt from the moment that the referee yelled for a line-up until the final gong clanged the end of the eighth chukker.

There was only a small crowd of polo fans on hand to see yesterday's battle, due to the threatening attitude of the weather. At that, Jupiter Pluvius came along with a couple of showers during the midst of the game and dampened not only the spirits of the Oahu fans but the spirit of the play as well. This was during the sixth chukker when the play slowed up considerably.

By its victory yesterday Kauai is entitled to meet Maui, the latter being victors over the Army team last Saturday, for the island title. This final game will take place next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Kapalani field. The Oahu team and the Army team will play off for the cellar championship this Saturday following the race program.

The game yesterday was marred by eternal missing of the ball. During the latter half of the game, when the wet field had become almost covered with hoof prints, the ball sometimes sank into these grooves, resulting in stopping many a merry rush for goal.

The Star

James Spalding was the star of the day. He was all over the field playing an incomparable game. John Malina was close behind him in stellar performance. Between the two of them, the Oahu team fared ill. Both of them

Kauai got away with but one goal in that chukker.

Summary

First chukker—1, James Spalding, Kauai, 2:12; 2, James Spalding, Kauai, 6:54.

Second chukker—3, James Spalding, Kauai, 4:11; John Malina, Kauai, 6:13.

Third chukker—5, James Spalding, Kauai, 0:3.

Fourth chukker—6 John Malina, Kauai, 1:43; 7, Philip Rice, Kauai, 5:10.

Fifth chukker—8, John Malina, Kauai, 5:35.

Sixth chukker—9, Philip Rice, Kauai, 13; 10, James Spalding, Kauai, 2:05; 11, John Malina, Kauai, 5:43; 12 John Malina, Kauai, 8:00.
